ANOTHER POPULAR LOCAL MUSIC ACT THAT TOWN AND COUNTRY WON'T INVITE TO THE TOWN SQUARE Anita Rosamond is a very popular local singer that draws large crowds (usually the 50+ people) and despite her performing in Chesterfield, Des Peres, Webster Groves, Kirkwood, St. Louis hotels, wineries and elsewhere she is not invited to play at the Town Square.

She draws standing room only to the Saw Mill in Des Peres with musicians who sit in.

A solo act in Manchester

This is Anita at Smitty's on Clayton Rd in Chesterfield on one of her regular Saturday afternoon gigs. There was a problem at Smitty's as Anita's fans would show up, have lunch and a drink and then not leave until Anita was done performing. The three hour full house was not flipping any tables.

Another full house for a Chesterfield Valley gig.

Here is Anita doing a Christmas in July concert in a Webster Groves park.

A patio gig at a Chesterfield restaurant.

Anita as a headliner at the Webster Groves Jazz Festival.

Another gig in Chesterfield Valley

Another crowded Anita gig

Anita leads Christmas Carols in Wildwood

Anita lives in Manchester, is very popular in West County and draws a lot of older residents. Town and Country is spending five figures for a contract employee to do marketing for Town Square events. Anita does her own marketing with a big email list and on her website. Why the Parks Department and Committee have not booked her for the Town Square in the past or scheduled her for 2024 is a mystery, but it tells me they don't know the popular music performers especially for 50+ residents, who deserve a concert they would enjoy.

FORMER ALDERMAN CHUCK LENZ CHECKS IN: Chuck lived at the far end of Mason Valley. He was an alderman for two separate terms that occurred 19 years apart. He retired and moved near children in Collierville, Tenn. He reports on facebook that his current occupation is "walking the dog."

MAY 5TH DOG RECOVERY DAY:

Good morning, if you all would be so kind and help relocate me back to my family, I would greatly appreciate it. The fine officers of the Chesterfield Missouri Police Department found me wandering around Olive and Woods Mill this morning around 7 am.

Any help in identifying me and/or my family would be extremely helpful! If you do recognize me, please contact the CMPD on their non emergency number at 636-537-3000.

Actually it was not the police who found this dog. They lied in the email. Here is a post on the facebook from the person who rescued the dog, Larry Roos

I was the one who was able to get this pup into my car (by getting on my knees in the middle of Woods Mill and doing my embarrassing dog voice that all of us have!) This dog was so nice and funny. Head out the window the entire time happy as can be. Even came over and sat on my lap although I think he just wanted to stick his head out the drivers side window! I called the police station and it sounds like he's been released to STL County Animal Control. I really really hope someone comes forward. I would find it hard to believe someone isn't missing him, and he had the red collar on already when I found him. Also big thanks to the gentleman in the white car with his dog who was also trying to round this pup up.

THIS IS FROM THE ST. LOUIS COUNTY ANIMAL CONTROL TUESDAY EVENING: Unfortunately, the dog you're inquiring about is still at our shelter and has not been reclaimed by the owner yet.

DO YOU NEED A LICENSE TO STORE HUNDREDS OF CARS IN A RESIDENTIAL COMMUNITY LIKE CHESTERFIELD. We got some mixed messages, reference 300 Teslas being stored on the parking lot of Chesterfield Mall. Tesla has had a large number of problems, which may have made people with more money than sense to find another expensive car to buy. Here are some of the problems:

Battery and Charging Issues

High voltage battery starting intense fires after collisions

Software Glitches

Suspension and air suspensions problems

Door lock and window problems

Maybe these are the reasons for Teslas not flying off sales lots and suddenly 300 cars are being stored on the Chesterfield Mall's empty parking lot. The mall is scheduled to be torn down in August and the beginning of a major redevelopment project.

I inquired if a business license was needed to store 300 automobiles in Chesterfield. I got two different answers.

Do you need a business license or permit for a car storage business in Chesterfield? 300 cars can't be for one dealer.

Thanks,

John Hoffmann

FIRST ANSWER

According to our code (405.10.030 – Automobile storage land use definition), a business engaged in the storage of four-wheeled motor vehicles designed for passenger transport, including passenger cars and light-duty trucks (such as pickup trucks, sport utility vehicles, vans, and minivans) that are not sold on the premises would still require a business license as this use/business type is not exempt in our code.

According to Denise, Platinum Motor Company has closed based on a recent email from management of Chesterfield Mall tenants (Rick). I know I recently saw the cars were still on the property, so not sure of the date/timing....or if this is what he is asking about specifically.

This afternoon we confirmed the cars on the mall parking lot are overflow storage for Tesla, not Platinum Motor Company. There is no code violation. Tesla has an active business license.

I believe Tesla Motor's license is to operate a sales office in Chesterfield Valley on Chesterfield Airport Road and not extend to Chesterfield Mall's parking lot for storage of hundreds of cars.

HERE ARE THE PRICES FOR 2023 TESLAS

Model and version	Base price	Max price
Model 3	$40,240	$59,740
Model 3 Long Range	$47,240	$66,740
Model 3 Performance	$53,240	$71,240
Model Y	$47,740	$67,740
Model Y Long Range	$50,490	$73,990
Model Y Performance	$54,490	$73,490
Model X	$98,490	$130,740
Model X Plaid	$108,490	$134,240
Model S	$88,490	$113,240
Model S Plaid	$108,490	$133,240

One Councilperson wondered where they will move hundreds of cars when the redevelopment project starts in August.

It is somewhat amazing that Chesterfield would allow this non-residential and non-retail operation. If a BP owned gas station was on Olive Blvd they would need a business license for that address. If they next decided to open a gas station on Chesterfield Airport Road they could not use the license for the Olive Blvd. station, they would have to get a separate license for the Chesterfield Airport Road station. Apparently the city is saying the Tesla doesn't need to do that when they open a new business of vehicle storage nowhere near their sales operation in Chesterfield Valley. (I keep starting to write "dealership" but it is not since it is company owned.).

Here is a headline from a Wednesday May 8th Washington Post article that may also figure into the lack of Tesla sales:

Tesla retreat from EV charging leaves growth of U.S. network in doubt

Sudden layoffs this week left Tesla construction vendors uncertain whether to carry on with the charging projects they were building.

Tesla's abrupt decision to lay off its electric-vehicle charging team and reduce its investments in public charging is a blow to the U.S. network, which has long relied on Elon Musk to build the bulk of the country's fast chargers.

It seems like city officials are closing their eyes or maybe the fact that Mayor Bob Nation owns two Teslas including a 2023 Tesla might have something to do with it.

CITY COUNCIL MEETING

For the second meeting in a row Mayor Bob Nation was missing. At the Tuesday April 16, he was at his regular Bible Reading class and not at the swearing in of half the council. On the May 6 meeting he was out of town on vacation.

Dan “Wolfman” Hurt, this year’s president pro-tem ran the meeting. Frankly Hurt had a lot of trouble despite being a longtime member of the Council in running the meeting. He was routinely corrected of ordering reading of bills and taking votes. Maybe the worst was when he called City Clerk Vickie McGownd by Councilwoman Barb McGuinness’ name. The show was a good example of what a great job Councilwoman Mary Ann Mastorakos did running meetings in Mayor Nation’s absence in 2023-24. (Actually Mastorakos did a better job than the mayor.)

CITIZEN OF YEAR Rob Kilo was awarded the 2024 Chesterfield Citizen of the Year for his volunteer work in building the Monarch Grove Butterfly Park including a butterfly statue in memory of his mother. He served on the City volunteer Parks and Rec Committee.

The rest of the meeting dealt with non-controversial items many that we covered after the April meeting. This included the gift of 15.9 acres of land to be used as parkland, the sale of 16.95 acres of city property to the Staenberg Group for the redevelopment of the Chesterfield Mall project and approving an annual contract with St. Louis County for Vector Control spraying as needed.

DEFENSE TO THE CICADA INVASION: See what my wife, Diana, did to protect new trees planted in the last year from cicadas.
